Describes Black Eagle

New York Engineering and Mining Journal gives illustrated Write-up of the well-known English Property.

The following description of the Black Eagle mine is taken from the Engineering and Mining Journal of
New York:—

This mine, formerly known as the Regina, has for the past two years, been in the hands of a new company and under new management. A thorough and almost complete change has taken place in the plant and buildings. Although such alterations have been costly, the apparently permanent character of the mine, appears to warrant the new company in making the expenditures. Through the courtesy of the managing director, Mr. N. L. McMillan, the writer has recently had an opportunity to make a visit of inspection to the property.
Mr. McMillan is interested in good paying mines in West Africa and in other places and his experience as business manager has been of great advantage to the company.

Costly experiments, such as the purchase of mining machinery which was not suited to the conditions, and the erection of an expensive plant which was equally useless, were the chief reasons to be assigned to the failure of the mine to show itself heretofore a profitable investment.
The kind of work done has been valuable only in the way of furnishing experience to others.

The seven Tremain mills of two stamps each have been taken down and are for sale. The present equipment includes a Jencks thirty-stamp mill, which is now running continuously and has been since last December. There are also three boilers of 50 horse power each, Jencks hoist, Corliss engine, lathes and saw-mill. A new house for the manager, boarding houses, assay office, general office and a number of cottages for married men, are located conveniently near. A new complete plant is replacing the old one and in a short time will be in use, with a capacity of from 200 to 300 tons

The careful supervision of all work is apparent, and this reflects credit on the general manager, Mr. Tom Tretheway, a man of large experience and well-known as a successful manager.

There are 8 veins on the property, although as yet, nearly all the work has been done on one vein which runs almost north and south, dipping below the lake towards the north. It is a true fissure in granite resembling protogine. Towards the south the vein runs into altered diabase (trap) and curves toward the east. At this end, the schistose matter is mixed with the quartz. The vein dips towards the west in the granit, but changes to the east in the trap.

At the time of the writer's visit, the main shaft was 504 feet deep, and about 3,535 feet of drifting had been done. At a depth of 452 feet a cross-cut has been driven east 18 feet cutting the vein, which at the seventh level dips into the hanging wall. At the eighth level, a cross-cut north 18 feet, passes through the vein. Drifting is being carried forward north, and south, on the third level. Ninety feet north from the shaft a winch has been sunk 12 feet, and reveals a good width of vein. In one instance, the drift is 95 feet high and broken through the levels as is shown on the plan. The vein on the eighth level is widening and continues to do so up to the ninth or bottom level, where it is ten feet wide.
The walls in the upper workings are granite, but between the fifth and eighth level they change to trap.
The vein matter is a waxy-white quartz, with a rich blue streak, containing free gold. The writer is informed that there are about 8,000 tons of pay ore blocked out. About 1,500 tons of concentrates are from 8.5 to 8.9 per ton. About 2,600 cords of wood are piled up near the quill. A water-fall within four miles, is available for the generation of the power for this and other mines which are of great promise in this district.

higher than the boiling point of liquid air that no further heating is necessary to produce the change. Alcohol which freezes at a temperature of 202 degrees below zero becomes solid if brought into contact with liquid air.

During the process of evaporation, nitrogen frees itself first and the consequence is that the remaining liquid becomes richer in oxygen. This fact is made use of in a number of interesting experiments. Steel wire burns with a dazzling light in liquid air, and hair felt, tin cans and garbage which under ordinary circumstances burn with difficulty, even in a hot flame, are rapidly consumed after being dipped in liquid air, no smoke or odor arising.

Raw beef-steak, potatoes, hollow rubber-balls, rubber tubing, and other elastic substances, will be frozen to the hardness and brittleness of glass, and will be shattered as easily as so many lamp chimneys. A bunch of roses is dipped into the liquid, and while apparently unaffected by the frosty bath, crumble like tiny ice-cream when the hand passes over them. Nails are driven with a hammer made of frozen mercury and many other experiments quite as marvelous are shown.

Seats now on sale at Hook's Grocery Store.

eron presiding at a full meeting.

COINING MONEY.

The Birmingham, Eng. mint is at present occupied with an extensive coinage order for Canada. Silver 25-cent, 10-cent, and 5-cent pieces are being made to the value of just under one million dollars, and the aggregate number of pieces amounts to considerably over a million. The obverse bears the bust of Edward VII, who is depicted wearing his crown and coronation robes, the design being a very good one. Owing to the fact that the full bust is shown, the word, "Canada" has had to be removed from the obverse, where it was engraved on the Victorian coinage, to the reverse. Here it is placed above the middle of the coin, and the other lettering conveys the denomination of the coin, the whole thing being surmounted by a floral wreath.

WILLIAM OF ORANGE.

Rev. Chas. Lench, Methodist minister Newfoundland writing in the Sentinel of Toronto, calls attention to the fact that the tomb of William of Orange in Westminster Abbey is without a monument. One of the flagstones on the floor of the historic cathedral bears the inscription which would in all probability cost about twenty-five cents. The inscription reads:—

Mary II Died 1704.

William III Died 1702.

Anyone who has read Macaulay's eulogy of William of Orange will wonder at this great piece of ingratitude on the part of the British nation. Macaulay, was not an Orangeman, but he knew genius when he saw it, and he describes William as one of the greatest generals in English history. William was on his horse, and in front of his troops, when other men in as poor health as he was all his life, would have been in bed waiting for death. "William was defeated over and over again," says Macaulay, but he didn't know it. He should have retreated, and asked for terms scores of times, but he didn't. When he retreated he should have been routed, but he wasn't. He hung on, and was always in the place of the greatest danger, and whenever terms were asked, it was the enemy that wanted them. Certainly, William deserves well of the English people, but a monument in reticent stone could not add to the glory of such a genius. Mr. Lench talks of a popular subscription to erect a monument, and the idea is a good one, though if the money were spent in putting a copy of the little road Macaulay into the hands of every British subject, it would do more to popularize the deeds of William of Glorious memory than would a monument in Westminster Abbey, where but one in every ten thousand of the millions who compose the British Empire would see it.

We all begin to feel kindly toward the council since getting our tax bills. They are much lower than they have been for some years.

There is often a tone of regret in the voice of the free and independent American who speaks of the ease and despatch with which the Czar, or even Emperor William, would bring the coal strike to an end.

The Fairy Lamp-lighter.

Affection often inspires insanity. In a life of Joseph Severn, the narrative of the artist's care of the poet Keats in his last illness includes a graceful incident. Severn, worn out with watching and tireless service, would sometimes drop asleep and allow the candle to go out, thus leaving the sick man in darkness, which he dreaded. Realizing that this was liable to occur, Severn hit upon a happy device to keep the light still burning. One evening he fastened a thread from the bottom of the candle already lighted to the wick at the top of another unlighted one set ready near by.

Not being sure the experiment would succeed, he had not mentioned it, and when later on he fell asleep as the first candle was burning low the thread was too considerate to awake him, but lay patiently awaiting the extinction of the fluttering flame. Suddenly, just as he expected gloom and blackness, the connecting thread too fine and distant for him to see, caught fire, and a tiny spark began to run along it. Then he watched the sleeping nurse with an exclamation of joy as the light came.

"Severn! Severn!" he cried. "Here's a little fairy lamp-lighter, actually lit up by the other candle!"

But it was only the good fairy of many electronics-loving folk thought—that had lighted the candle.

If the average man were as good as he thinks other men are, he would be a great deal better off.

$ KING CASH $

WE SELL FOR CASH. WE BUY FOR CASH.

KING CASH

And the public reaps the benefit. In what way they reap the benefit is easily shown in the difference between CASH and CREDIT PRICES. At a cash store the object is to sell goods quickly—to turn over the capital invested in the business without delay and to do this PRICES are cut down to the lowest margin of profit upon which business can be conducted. * * * A visit to the will convince you that the cash is a great factor in making low prices. A person with the CASH is a thoroughly independent person, who is not looking for any favors, but who is looking for VALUE for VALUE. And the CASH MERCHANT is the only merchant who can give value for value. In a CASH STORE you have nothing to pay for but the goods and a living margin for the CASH MERCHANT. In a CREDIT STORE you have to pay not only for the goods and the living for the merchant, but you pay another margin to cover those unpaid accounts which the merchant cannot collect from some of those old customers of his who have forgotten to pay their bills. YOU PAY STILL ANOTHER MARGIN to cover the expense of that beautiful system of books which adorns the office of the CREDIT MERCHANT, and you pay for the book-keeper's wages too.

AND YOU PAY STILL ANOTHER MARGIN to cover the extra cost to the merchant of the goods that he sells, because a CREDIT MERCHANT selling his goods on time has not the CASH wherewith to buy more goods to replace those that have been sold on credit, but to replace them he must also get credit from his wholesale merchant and for this accommodation he pays for his goods more than the CASH MERCHANT DOES.

So, all these EXTRA MARGINS conspire to make higher prices, and it can be readily seen how it is that such large concerns as The T. Eaton Co., of Toronto, can do business in towns that are thousands of miles removed from their stores in Toronto.

The MERCHANTS blame the people for not supporting the tradesmen of their own towns—but no one is to blame but the MERCHANTS themselves for the remedy is in the hands of the MERCHANTS.

Treasurer's Sale of Lands

FOR ARREARS OF TAXES IN THE TOWN OF RAT PORTAGE. District of Rainy River.

TO WIT: By virtue of a warrant issued by the Mayor, under the Corporate Seal of the Town of Rat Portage, to me directed, bearing date the 25th day of August, 1902, commanding me to have the lands mentioned in the Schedule hereunto annexed sold to the highest bidder.

and the ideal is a good one, though if the money were spent in putting a copy of the little read Macaulay into the hands of every British subject, it would do more to popularize the deeds of William of Glorious memory than would a monument in Westminster Abbey, where but one in every ten thousand of the millions who compose the British Empire would see it.

We all begin to feel kindly toward the council since getting our tax bills. They are much lower than they have been for some years.

There are two physicians in Kew-wating, but so high is the reputation of our doctors in that town that the council this year appointed one of them, (Dr. Hanson) the health officer of the municipality. This may only be done however to inveigle us, inty yielding to the proposed scheme of amalgamation.

Mr. Brydon complains that we never mentioned the fact in the Miner that he came in and paid an account he owed us. We happened to be out at the time, and did not know that he had paid, or we would certainly have mentioned the matter, and we hope that our esteemed fellow citizen will accept our sincerest apologies. Looking over our books, however, we find that it was an L. O. L. account, he paid, and as these are always promptly settled anyway, we fail to see why Mr. Brydon should take the pains to stop us on the street and tell us about it.

Holding a Sculptor. When Macmonnies, the American sculptor, was a young man working in Paris, Falgout, the famous French sculptor, on one occasion entered his atelier and found there a beautiful Diana that had been for months "on the stocks" and was approaching a perfection immeasurably satisfactory to the sculptor himself.

Falgout became so absorbed in the work before him as to forget that it was not his own. He began to twist and pull the tiny limbs of Diana this way and that to punch her in the ribs, turn her quivering head for she was then only a lay, of course, and susceptible to impressions—until at last he had produced the very pose he desired. "There, my friend, I like her better so," he cried and skipped out of the studio.

He had really intended to do Macmonnies a favor and had indeed paid him the greatest compliment of which he was capable, but the young sculptor was in distress, for on comparing the remodeled Diana with a photograph of Falgout's statue of the same (which he is famous) the Frenchman had unconsciously made a practical replica of the other. Macmonnies did not rest until he had restored his statue to its original pose.

One evening he fastened a thread from the bottom of the candle already lighted to the wick at the top of another unlighted one set ready near by. Not being sure the experiment would succeed, he had not mentioned it, and when later on he fell asleep as the first candle was burning low the thread was too considerable to awake him, but lay patiently awaiting the extinction of the fluttering flame. And downy just as he expected alone and blackness, the connecting thread too fine and distant for him to see—caught fire, and a tiny spark began to run along it. Then he waked the sleeping nurse with an exclamation of joyful surprise.

"Excellent," he cried, "Here's a little fairy lamp-lighter actually lit up the other candle!" But it was only the good fairy of many sleepless—having forthrightly—that had lighted the candle.

If the average man were as good as he thinks other men ought to be, it wouldn't be long until his vanity made him topheavy.—New York Press.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE

FOR THE MEDICINE THAT RESTORED HER DAUGHTER'S HEALTH.

She Had Suffered From Severe Headaches, Vomiting and Extreme Nervousness, and Feared She Would Not Regain Her Strength.

Every prudent mother will watch carefully the health of her young daughter at the period when she is passing from childhood to womanhood. This period is the most critical in the young girl's life. It is then that she becomes pale, easily tired and troubled with head aches, without apparent cause. The blood becomes thin and watery, and unless prompt steps are taken to restore it to its rich, red, health-giving condition, decline, and perhaps consumption will follow. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured more pale, anemic, easily tired girls than any other medicine, and mothers will make no mistake if they insist upon their growing daughters taking these pills from time to time. Mrs. B. Gage, a lady well-known in Rowanton, Que., tells what these pills have done for her daughter. She says:—My daughter, Catherine, aged fourteen years, was suffering greatly with severe headaches, vomiting and nervousness. She was so completely run down that we feared that she would not recover her strength. We tried several medicines, but they did not seem to do her any good. I then thought we would try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the result has been up to our fondest hopes. She has fully recovered her health and strength and I shall be very glad if this experience will help some other suffering girl regain her health.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make rich red blood, and give new strength with every dose. They cure stomach, headache, heart palpitation, dizziness, and bring the glow of health to pale and sorrow cheeks. These pills are also a certain cure for the ailments that make the lives of so many women a burden. Be sure you get the genuine with the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent post paid at 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A TIGER SHOW IN INDIA. How the Dread "Man Eater" is Carried From Town to Town.

A sketch made on the streets of a town in the province of Bengal, India, shows a method somewhat unusual, even in that country, by which a tiger may be put on public exhibition. Instead of being confined in a cage or menagerie, where the people are required to visit him and pay a regular price of admission, the tiger is carried around in the towns, where everybody can see him and pay or not, as they please. The native owner collects the small coins that people choose to pay, while his assistant attends to the team. This tiger was captured when a cub, and when he was half grown or more, a strap of heavy leather was fastened around his neck and another around his flanks. For greater security these two straps are connected by a lighter one—running along the animal's back. Finally attached to the neck strap, or yoke, are two stout iron chains, fastened to the opposite ends of the platform-frame. Straps could not safely take the place of these iron chains, for the tiger's sharp teeth would soon gnaw through the leather and set him at liberty. To the hinder strap, or belt, are fastened two straps, each firmly looped to the platform frame. Thus the powerful beast is firmly held captive, and at the same time is left sufficiently free in his motions to stand or crouch. The platform is framed on two long stout bamboo poles, which serve also as shafts for the small human ox which drags the cart. An ox not thoroughly trained would be in mortal terror of his load. The platform is mounted on two rough, heavy cart wheels such as are used in India, and the outfit is complete.

We can imagine the timid curiosity with which the women, and especially the children in the streets of a town, or along the country road, would gaze at their strange visitor. They have heard many a story of the slaying of human beings by the dreaded "man-eater" of the jungle, and perhaps one of their own number has fallen a victim. The man-eater is usually an older tiger: whose strength is failing and whose teeth have partly lost their sharpness. Such a beast finds it easier to lurk in the vicinity of settlements and to pick up an occasional man, woman or child, than to run down wild cattle.

The largest, fiercest and most brightly colored tigers are found in the province of Bengal, near the mouth of the Ganges river, and not far from Calcutta. A full-grown Bengal tiger sometimes measures ten feet from nose to tip of tail. Such a monster makes no more account of springing upon a man than a cat does of seizing a mouse. He surpasses the lion in strength and ferocity, and has no rival among the beasts of prey except the grizzly bear and the recently discovered giant bear of Alaska.

One of O'Connell's "Balls." Some extremely amusing mistakes have been made by even the most practiced speakers in their desire to carry their audience with them. O'Connell once in an election speech in Conciliation hall told his followers that if measures injurious to Ireland were brought into parliament he would go over to England and "die on the floor of the house of commons in opposition to them," and when he came back he would say, "Are you for repeal now?"—London Standard.

Palestine Violin. The rebab of Palestine is a sort of violin. The body is a square frame covered with parchment. The instrument is played with a bow. There is but one string, a thick, coarse horse-hair, but expert performers can, it is said, get considerable variety of tone from this primitive instrument.

High Explosives. "Tommy," said the schoolteacher to Tommy Taddella, "what do you understand by the term 'high explosives'?" "Sky rockets, ma'am," replied Tommy.

Practice and Preaching. When the late Bishop Hare was presiding over a Methodist Episcopal church in New York city, a large reception was given in his honor, to which a brother of his, a lawyer, who closely resembled the bishop, was invited.

During the evening a member of the conference who had never met the bishop's brother approached him and, shaking him warmly by the hand, said: "Good evening, Bishop Hare. I greatly enjoyed the sermon you gave us today. It is just what this church needs."

"You are mistaken in the person," said the brother, smiling, as he pointed to the bishop on the opposite side of the room, "that is the man who preached; I practice."

YOUR*ARTHER*Metronome's Medley

Mr. Angus Sutherland, the leader of Keewatin Presbyterian choir has left that busy burg to take a position in Port Arthur. Mr. Angus' departure is keenly felt in the flour milling centre, as he was not only the main-spring of the choir itself, but was also the musical corner stone of the town. He was employed by the Mathers, who are prominent in Presbyterian church circles over there, but it would seem that they did not realize what a gap his departure would leave, although I understand he gave them lots of notice that he intended going where he could be assured of making a living. Rat Portage was once as indifferent as the sister town in matters of this nature, but thank heaven, we have D. C. Cameron here, who makes it a point to provide work, for singers, musicians, hockey players, rowers, or anybody whose presence is an advantage to the town.

The Fort William Journal, copies my criticism of the Coronation choir, and says—

"Metronome, the dramatic critic of the Rat Portage Miner is rather severe on the Coronation Choir party, and even goes so far as to insinuate that he doubts that it is a choir at all, and if so not the one that sang in Westminster Abbey." The criticism mentioned is then inserted, after which the following comment is added by the Journal—

"This may be a trifle harsh, but it coincides with many opinions that I have heard expressed by those who attended here. I think the general crowd who heard them will say that it was disappointing."

Mr. Wheeler the Winnipeg Tribune critic says—

"Enjoyable as the Coronation Choir concert was, we have yet to hear the ideal Cathedral choir in its highest musical aspect. The programme on Thursday night did not come up to the standard of excellence demanded from a concert party whose members have participated in the Coronation service in Westminster Abbey, although a change for the better was noticed last night at the sacred concert."

The Winnipeg Telegram critic says—

"The majority of those present were under the impression that they were to hear the Westminster cathedral choir, and expected great things from the boy sopranos. In this they were disappointed, for the six little fellows who attempted to fill the part were entirely unable either in power or quality to do so. No doubt the travelston, Miss Gertie Moore, of Crookston, was the bride, and Rev. Mr. McKenzie tied the nuptial knot at the Presbyterian manse. Only a few friends were present at the wedding. -Free Press.

Mr. Deering is the young actor who fell off the stage of the Hilliard Theatre, into the orchestra, during the presentation of "Cyano de Bergerac," by Harold Nelsen, some time ago.

The best-bred women do not fuss. They take their gowns and their furniture, their jewels and their children as matters of course. They are unconscious of their veils and their gloves, and they expect every one else to be equally so. If they see an intimate wearing a handsome gown they refer to it admiringly, but they also preface their comment with an apology. Their differences with their husbands are not aired, neither the domestic upheavals caused by the desertion of the cook on wash morning. The repose of well-bred women is not the quiet of weakness. It is the calm trained faculties, balanced so nicely that an earthquake may cause a change of color, but will not bring forth a loud cry. Well-bred women are a boon to the human race. They help the social and professional world to maintain a high standard both of morals and behavior.

Dr. Farrell, the surgeon general of the lumber camps, and resident physician of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, has had a somewhat varied career while it lasted. He went to South Africa with the first C. M. R. and he tells me there were thirteen full fledged doctors in that contingent serving as private soldiers! He was one of them. The doctor rose to the dignity of three stripes and a sash, and finally got a surgeon's place. When the C. M. R. were coming home, the doctor was asked to stay with the Imperial army and he would be given the rank of captain. He stayed. When I asked the doctor what regiment had the honor of his presence, he said he wasn't quite sure, the regiment being with column, fly, and otherwise, scouts and advance guards, and then with the Royal Scot, but when the war was over, Dr. Farrell considered it time for him to quit, as in times of peace it costs a commissioned officer about $25,000 a year to exist, and he happened to be a little short of person a chat with

RESTFUL SERVICE

We frequently hear of people suc-business career. If people would allow themselves more frequent relaxations from their work and seek rest and comfort in, for instance, a ride upon the North-Western Limited, the most comfortable train in every rethe Twin Cities and Chicago), the number of physical break-downs would be greatly reduced. For lowest rates, but as they sang last evening they are inferior to the boys of several Cana-the "Song of the Battle Eve" (Cranskeen Lawn), were hopelessly over balanced by the tenors and bas-
